Joe Funk Construction Promotes Glenn Sefton and Aaron Albright To Key Leadership Roles

Dallas, TX, April 11, 2016 – Dallas-based general contractor and construction manager, Joe Funk Construction, announced the promotions of Glenn Sefton to the position of Senior Vice President and Aaron Albright to the position of Vice President.

In his new role, Glenn Sefton will oversee construction operations and the firm’s use of advanced technologies to enhance both the delivery of construction services and the customer’s experience. Aaron Albright will oversee the firm’s marketing and business development efforts, promotional and branding activities, and client relations. Both gentlemen serve on the company’s senior management team providing strategic direction for quality growth and oversight of day-to-day activities and personnel in their respective areas.

“Both Glenn and Aaron have made significant contributions to our company’s success, and we value their abilities to create and sustain strong relationships with clients and team members,” says Rusty Norris, President. “They each bring leadership qualities, integrity and innovative thinking to their responsibilities that strengthen the way we take care of customers and deliver projects.”

Sefton began his career at Joe Funk Construction in 1981, shortly before receiving a Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering degree from SMU. He joined the firm as a carpenter learning the construction business from the ground up starting as a superintendent and then advancing into other roles including estimator, assistant project manager, project manager, and more recently senior project manager and vice president. His 35 years of construction experience includes the management of over $100 million in K-12 construction in the past 10 years and numerous federal projects around the U.S..

Albright joined the Joe Funk team in 2013 as the Director of Client Relations after completing his graduate degree in environmental management at Texas Christian University. Prior to moving to Texas, Aaron spent six years with an environmental consulting and laboratory services firm in Colorado after receiving his Bachelor of Arts degree in 2006 in environmental studies at Eckerd College in Florida. He has achieved numerous certifications and technical skills in the medical, emergency response, and environmental/engineering field—specifically water related and erosion control.
